Sheriff Vann of Leon County Here With Fred Mayes, Charged With Murder.

From Tuesday's Daily.

Sheriff Vann of Leon county arrived in the city last night with Fred Mayes, a negro, brought here for safe keeping. The negro was locked in the city prison over night and transferred to the county jail this morning. He is charged with killing a young white man in Leon county last Friday afternoon. The negro and his victim were employed with a railroad crew in Leon county, when, as a result of trouble, the negro hit the white man over the head with a stick of wood. The white man died that night, and in the meantime the negro skipped out. Sheriff Vann got on his trail and caught him Saturday. A mob was also after the negro and the sheriff, not caring to encounter the mob, kept the negro tied out in the woods two nights, and finally made his way to a railroad point and brought his man here. He will be kept here until the excitement passes over in that county.

The young man who was killed was named McCoy and was popular in that section.

RESOLUTIONS ON GENERAL LEE,

Passed By John H. Reagan Camp of Confederate Veterans.

Whereas, although all mankind are destined to pass through the ordeal of death, and the great majority of them are doomed to fade from the memory of their fellowmen; and

Whereas, the deeds of good men live after them and continue to influence the world even after they have been forgotten; and

Whereas, some men by the force of their great example, the eminence of their position and the effect of their labors are remembered in their personalities not less than in the effect and influence of their lives; and

Whereas, this Camp of Confederate Veterans regard the late Stephen D. Lee as one eminently worthy to be classed among those so distinguished; therefore, be it

Resolved, That in the death of this heroic southerner, the state of Mississippi, the states of the Southern Confederacy, the American Union, and the entire world of noble men, have lost a man thoroughly representative of all that is highest and noblest in the lives and characters of men, a man true to his convictions of right and of duty, a man loyal to the principles of true, free self-government, a man warlike in war, peaceable in peace, staunch in his adherence to the interests of his, patriotic in all conditions, ready in the hour of humiliation, defeat and disaster to put forth his energies of mind and of body in rebuilding his wasted and ruined country and to cause it to become again a garden filled with the roses of Sharon and lilies of the valley. Be it further

Resolved, That while deploring the loss of this one of our great leaders, and while bowing to the decree of our great and Supreme Commander which passes him forever beyond the bounds of mortal life and transfers him to the ranks of those now mustering on the glorious plains of the eternal vision, we yet cherish the memory of the man and his career, we yet challenge the world to scrutinize his record and pronounce him if they dare less than a hero worthy to stand with that great army of immortals composed of R. E. Lee, Stonewall Jackson, the Johnsons, the Davises, the Morgans, the Polks, the Hills, the Prices and others, high and low, in rank and file, whose deeds have covered the bloody fields of the south with imperishable glory.

Resolved, further, That we hold him up as an example to our young to be emulated, as the advocate, defender and conservator of everything implied by humanity, patriotism and courage.

Resolved, further, That we extend to his bereaved loved one, to our surviving brothers of the Confederate army, to the south and the nation, our condolence in the grief for his loss that all must feel.

Yes, all that can die of Stephen D. Lee is dead. His body is indeed shut up in that cold and narrow house, for as is said in the elegy of Gray:

The boast of heraldry, its pomp and power
And all that beauty, all that wealth
e'er gave,
Await alike the inevitable hour,
The paths of glory lead but to the grave.

But these paths do not there terminate. They lead beyond and upward and they end in the supernal realm where we doubt not now the spirit of our departed comrade and commander is reuniting with his brothers in our illustrious but ill-fated war.

Palestine Light, Heat and Power Company Held Annual Meeting This Morning.

From Monday's Daily.

The annual meeting of the Palestine Light, Heat and Power company was held at the company's office this morning, with President E. C. Beach in the chair. The affairs of the company were shown to be in excellent condition. All of the old officers were re-elected for the ensuing year, as follows: President, E. C. Beach; Vice President, Volney Foster; General Manager, A. T. Knies. Mr. Knies has made good in his present position, and makes a good showing for the business of the company.

Ramsour-Cook.

At the pretty home of the bride's brother, Mr. Henry Cook, Montalba, Texas, Wednesday evening, June 10, 1908, at 9 o'clock p. m., Rev. H. B. Ramsour and Miss Mamie Cook were married, the writer officiating. A host of friends gathered to witness the marriage of these popular young people. The occasion was a most happy one. The contracting parties were at their best, and special preparation had been made for the pleasure and comfort of the guests. These two young people are too well known to the readers of the Herald to need any lengthy introduction. Let me say that Mr. Ramsour is a worthy young man of Palestine who has already risen high in the Baptist ministry of Anderson county. Miss Mamie is one of Anderson county's most popular and accomplished young ladies.

Friends may address them at Montalba, their future home.

May their pathway through life be strewn with thornless flowers.

J. V. Kelley.

Distinguished Visitors.

From Tuesday's Daily.

A special car, on its way from Austin to New York, and bearing a party of excursionists from Texas to the metropolis, broke down before reaching Palestine, and was laid out here today for repairs. The party spent the greater part of the day sight-seeing. Mr. Harry Wright entertained some of the party, including Maj. Jno. B. Armstrong and daughter of Kathrine, Texas, Mr. W. H. Foltz, vice president of the Austin National Bank, and a Mr. McKean, of the McKean-Eilers Dry Goods company at Austin. They took a drive over the city, and had lunch together. The party continued on their journey via the 1:25 p. m. train.

Church Notice.

My subject for next Sunday at Neches at 11 a. m. and 8:30 p. m. will be "Practical Christianity." In these two sermons I propose to give an exposition of the general rules of the Methodist church, and show that they are all based upon the bible. We extend a cordial invitation to all the town and community to attend, and hope to have a full house, as this subject is of great importance.

W. W. Horner.

Expressman O'Connor of East St. Louis Passed Through Here With Detective.

From Wednesday's Daily.

Detective Gill of East St. Louis arrived in Palestine last night from the west, having in charge the man O'Connor, wanted in St. Louis for embezzlement of some $8,000 from the Pacific Express company. O'Connor was captured in the City of Mexico, where he went after leaving St. Louis. He was arrested there and was being carried back to the scene of trouble to stand trial. O'Connor appeared to be a young fellow with a good face. He was locked up here over night and left this morning in the Pullman car with the detective for East St. Louis.

Is a Major Now.

From Wednesday's Daily.

There was held a meeting last night at the office of Wright & Kendall, for the purpose of canvassing and declaring the result of the vote of the first battalion, second regiment, Uniform Rank, Knights of Pythias. Voted by mail. Capt. Harry Kitcher presided over the meeting, and after the count declared the election of Knight W. C. Kendall of Palestine, who is thus promoted to the office of major.

Mr. Kendall is a very enthusiastic Knight, and is especially interested in the Uniform Rank. The selection is a good one.

A Telegram.

From Wednesday's Daily.

Mr. F. C. Bailey, president of the Peoples Bank and Trust company, received the following telegram yesterday:

"Am shipping outfit via Palestine. Will start grading Monday. Joe Brown, contractor."

This has reference to the grading outfit for the proposed Union Central railroad. Mr. Bailey says the outfit will go into camp near Montalba, and will begin grading in the direction of Athens.

Will Speak at Holly Springs.

When the county candidates meet at Montalba on their campaign rounds they will speak at Holly Springs, in that community. The people up there are preparing to make it a big occasion.

Something Unusual.

From Monday's Daily.

The unusual spectacle was witnessed this morning of a rain storm cloud blowing up from the northeast. It is seldom indeed that a rain comes to this section from that direction.
